

Spring Campaign Report

Performance readout for the March–May "Grow Slow" launch across paid social, search, and email.

The short version

The campaign returned $504K on $120K spend — a 4.2x blended ROAS. Paid social carried reach, email quietly delivered the best margin, and search underperformed its test budget. This report covers what drove the number and what we're changing for summer.

How the quarter played out

"Grow Slow" was our first campaign built around creator-led video instead of static product shots. The bet paid off: video cut acquisition costs by a third, and the UGC hook format outperformed every studio asset we ran against it.

What worked

Creator videos under 20 seconds; email win-back flow (42% of email revenue); bundling free shipping with the starter kit offer.

What didn't

Broad search keywords burned budget before we tightened match types; carousel ads never beat video on any audience.

Optimizations shipped mid-flight

- ☒ Shifted 30% of search budget to paid social (week 6)
- ☒ Swapped studio assets for top-3 creator videos
- ☐ Negative-keyword cleanup for summer launch
- ☐ Creator contracts renewed for Q3 (3 of 5 signed)

Channel performance

Channel	Spend	Revenue	ROAS
Paid social	$58K	$267K	4.6x
Search	$34K	$156K	4.6x after week-6 fix (2.1x before)
Email	$12K	$81K	6.8x — best margin in the mix

4.2x
Blended ROAS across all channels

$18
Cost per acquisition, down from $27

2.8%
Average CTR on creator video

Revenue by channel

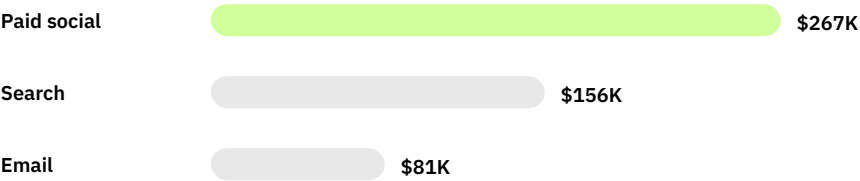

Fig. 1 — campaign revenue, March–May

The summer playbook

1

Double the creator roster

Five creators drove 61% of social revenue. Sign five more in the same niche before the July launch.

2

Launch search tight

Start with exact-match only on proven keywords; expand weekly from search-term data instead of guessing upfront.

3

Promote email to a launch channel

Best ROAS in the mix. Build the summer teaser sequence two weeks before paid goes live.

Rollout timeline

JUNE 15

Creator briefs out; email teaser sequence drafted.

JULY 1

Summer campaign live — social and email first, search follows a week later.

JULY 21

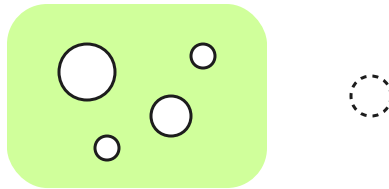

First optimization checkpoint: kill bottom-quartile assets, reallocate.

Wrap up

Spring proved the creator-led model. Summer's job is to scale it without letting CAC drift back up — the checkpoints above are how we'll catch it early.

Next steps

Approve the summer budget split by June 10 · sign the two remaining creator contracts · review the July 21 checkpoint together. Questions before then: hello@meadow.studio budget moves to proven channels; one experiment stays outside