The Brief

Makers Summit is a one-day gathering for 300 independent designers and builders: six talks, two working sessions, one long lunch. The goal isn't scale — it's that every attendee leaves with one working relationship they didn't arrive with.

This plan is the single source of truth. If it isn't in here, it isn't happening.

What success looks like

Sold out two weeks ahead. Sessions start on time, every time. No attendee spends more than ten minutes in a line — that includes registration, coffee, and lunch.

THE ONE RULE

Every decision gets tested against a single question: does this help two strangers start a conversation? If not, cut it and put the money into the lunch.

Open decisions

- ☒ Venue confirmed (Depot Hall, hold signed)
- ☒ Date locked — Saturday, October 17
- ☐ Catering vendor — decide between two bids (by Sept 4)
- ☐ Livestream or not (cost vs. sold-out incentive — decide Sept 11)
- ☐ Confirm sixth speaker (backup list ready)

Venue & budget

LINE	AMOUNT	STATUS	NOTES
Venue — Depot Hall	$16,000	Signed	Includes chairs, security, cleaning
AV & production	$12,000	Quoted	Two screens, recording, stage crew
Catering	$10,000	Bidding	Long-table lunch is the event's centerpiece
Speakers & travel	$6,000	Committed	Flat honorarium, no tiers
Contingency	$4,000	Held	Released only by the producer

Where the money goes

Production phases

- 01 Lock the skeleton
Venue, date, speakers, budget — done six weeks out. Everything after is execution.
- 02 Announce and sell
Tickets open five weeks out; speakers announced one per week to keep momentum.
- 03 Rehearse the day
Full run-of-show walkthrough with AV crew 48 hours before doors.

Run of show – October 17
